

Initial Analysis for July session predicting an August target event:

This initial analysis was done by Courtney Brown on 14 August 2009, prior to the target selection.

HRVG

Dick: The target seems to involve a large gathering of people on dry land. The gathering seems to be organized, with people moving in orderly lines. There seems to be some lights associated with the event, possibly used to illuminate the people, or to shine out over the people. Some atmospheric contamination may be involved at the target, possibly smoke.

Debra: The target seems to involve a large structure – possibly domed – and many people. The target seems to occur outside near the structure. There may be many people, especially outside of the structure. There may be smoke in the outside air.

Anne: The target seems to involve a central person of some influence.

Maria: The event may involve something emitting smoke in the air, perhaps like a smokestack. There may be mountains and a large body of water nearby.

Michele: Unclear.

Sita: The target may be located near some mountains and a large body of water, possibly churning or flowing. The target may be in a moderately cold or cool environment, possibly within the United States. At least one temporary moderately strong structure may be nearby.

CRV

Daz: The target involves nearby mountains and a large peaked structure. There is some movement in the land that may damage or move the structure. There is repetitive movement or sound associated with the target event.

Romferd: There may be water, possibly flowing, near or at the event. There may be an indentation in the ground associated with the event.
